International social science journal

Subject and author index

Vol. XXX (1978)

Subjects

Aggression, biological and sociological mechanisms of, 727–49
Anthropology, structural and Rousseauism, 605–17
Architecture
  cultural dimensions of, 560–90 traditional, in Ghana, 449–76
  rural, in Pakistan, 477–97
Argentina, periphery and environment in, 498–535
Arms race, dynamics of, 904–25
Atomic bombs and human beings, 375–92
Behavioural sciences, contributions to study of violence, 750–75
Biological and sociological mechanisms of aggression, 727–49
Brazil
  spatial dislocation and social identity in, 98–115 periphery and environment in, 498–535
British developments in housing and the State, 591–603
Bureaucracies, internationalization of, 31–46
Byelorussia, sociological research in, 421–6
Climate in tropics as obstacle to development, 339–52
Consensus, in international organizations, 893–903
Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, and international economic processes, 353–62
Criminology, as standpoint for study of violence, 858–66
Cultural dimensions of town planning and architecture, 560–90
Developing countries, teaching political science in, 167–72
Development research current, improving information on, 929–43
Development, tropical climate as obstacle to, 339–52
Disarmament, dynamics of, 904–25
Eastern Europe, social science policy in, 408–20
Economics, international, new approach to, 251–83
Economics, role and status in Zaire, 181–90
Environment, periphery, in Argentina and Brazil, 498–535
Ethics in political science research, 173–80
Europe
  architecture and town planning in, 560–90 towards a social science community in, 678–82
European socialist States, aspects of territorial subdivisions, 47–56
Famine and inequality, 867–92
Federalism, problems of, in U.S.S.R., 88–97
Foreign policy and political parties, 73–87
Geographical factors and problems of federalism in U.S.S.R., 88–97
Ghana, traditional architecture in, 449–76
Global management networks, 31–46
Global modelling, limits to, 284–300
Government, role of, in violence research, 776–800
Housing and the State, British developments, 591–603
Human settlements management training, role of Unesco, 663–5
Indian emergency and intellectuals, 944–6
Information on current development research, improvement of, 929–43
Intellectuals and Indian emergency, 944–6
Interdependence in international relations, 238–52
International co-operation, alternative forms of, 223–37
International economic processes, and work of Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, 353–62
International economics, new approach to, 251–83
International monetary order, reshaping of, 301–14
International organizations, consensus in, 893–903
International patenting as means of technological dominance, 315–37
International political economy as field of instruction, 666–77

International relations, interdependence in, 238–52
Investment, Japanese, in South-East Asia, 363–76
Italian case of data processing, government and the public, 146–63
Japanese investments in South-East Asia, determinants of, 363–76
Management networks, global, 31–46
Mass communication, symption or cause of violence, 816–33
Military R & D, dynamics of, 904–25
Monetary order, reshaping the international, 301–14
Nation-State, will it wither away?, 9–30
Norway, primary socio-economic data structure of, 621–52
Pakistan, traditional rural habitat in, 477–97
Patenting, as means of technological dominance, 315–37
Periphery and environment, in Argentina and Brazil, 498–535
Political parties and foreign policy, 73–87
Political science teaching of in developing countries, 167–72 ethics and responsibility in research, 173–80
Public participation in urban rehabilitation, 536–59
Regional integration as avenue to viability, 57–72
Rousseau and structural anthropology, 605–17
Smallness, evasion of, 57–72
Social identity and spatial dislocation in Brazil, 98–115
Social science
  information services in U.S.S.R., 395–403 policy in Eastern Europe, 408–20
Social sciences, towards a European community in, 678–82
Social Trends: a report for the United Kingdom, 653–9
Socialist States, European, aspects of territorial subdivisions, 47–56
Socio-economic data processing, government and the public in Italy, 146–63 structure of national primary sources in Norway, 621–52 structure of national primary sources in Tunisia, 119–45
Socio-economic development and violence, 834–57
Sociological and biological mechanisms of aggression, 727–49
Sociological research in the Byelorussian S.S.R., 421–6
South-East Asia, determinants of Japanese investment in, 363–76
Spatial dislocation and social identity in Brazil, 98–115
State, British developments in housing and the, 591–603
Technological dominance, international patenting as means of, 315–37
Territorial subdivisions in European socialist States, 47–56
Town planning, cultural dimensions of, 560–90
Tunisia, primary socio-economic data structure of, 119–45
Unesco, role in human settlements management training, 663–5
United Kingdom, Social Trends, an annual report for, 653–9
United States, instruction of international political economy in, 666–77
Urban centres, public participation in rehabilitation, 536–59
U.S.S.R. problems of federalism in, 88–97
  social science information services in, 395–403 Violence
  ubiquity of, 717–26
  contributions of behavioural sciences to study of, 750–75 and socio-economic development, 834–57 role of government in research on, 776–800 methodological problems of study, 858–66 and women, 801–15
  mass communication as symptom or cause of, 816–33 silent, famine and inequality, 867–92
Western European perspective on improvement of information on current development research, 929–43
Women and social violence, 801–15
Zaire, role and status of economics in, 181–90

Authors

BANDYOPADHYAYA, Jayantanuja. Climate as an obstacle to development in the tropics, 339–52

BEJAR NAVARRO, Raul. The teaching political science in developing countries, 167–72

BETEILLE, André. Intellectuals and the Indian Emergency, 944–6.

BOGOMOLOV, O. T. International economic processes and the work of the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, 353–62

BONGOY, Mpekesa. Role and status of economics in Zaire: a critical survey, 181–90

BONTINCK, Irmgard. Cultural dimensions of architecture and town planning in Europe, 560–90

BOOTH, Arthur. Atomic bombs and human beings, 377–92

BOUHDIBA, A. National primary socio-economic data structures. II: Tunisia, 119–45

BOULDING, Elise. Women and social violence, 801–15

BRUCAN, Silviu. The Nation-State: will it keep order or wither away? 9–30

BUSUTTIL, Salvino. Training for human settlements management: the role of Unesco, 663–5

CASANOVA ALVAREZ, Francisco. The teaching of political science in developing countries, 167–72

CRUMP HANSON, Elizabeth. International political economy as a new field of instruction in the United States, 666–72

DAVIDYUK, Georgy P. Sociological research in the Byelorussian S.S.R., 421–6

DOMENACH, Jean-Marie. The ubiquity of violence, 717–26

FEIERABEND, Rosalind L. The role of government in violence research, 776–800

FRANKEL, Mark S. Ethics and responsibility in political science research, 173–80

GORMAN, G. E. Improving information on current development research: a Western European perspective, 929–43

HALLORAN, James D. Mass communication: a symptom or cause of violence, 816–33

HARLOE, Michael. Housing and the State: recent British developments, 591–603

HOPKINS, Raymond F. Global management networks: the internationalization of domestic bureaucracies, 31–46

KARP, Lian S. The teaching of political science in developing countries, 167–72

KASPRZYK, Leszek. Social science policy in Eastern Europe, 407–20

KHAN, Rasheeduddin. Violence and socio-economic development, 834–57

KUMASI, FACULTY OF ARCHITECTURE, UNIVERSITY OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY. Traditional forms of architecture in Ghana 449–76

LABORIT, Henri. The biological and sociological mechanisms of aggression, 727–49

LEOŃSKI, Zbigniew. Aspects of territorial subdivisions in European socialist States, 47–56

LEWIS, Vaughan A. Evading smallness: regional integration as an avenue towards viability, 57–72

ŁUKASZEWICZ, Łucja. Aspects of territorial subdivisions in European socialist States, 47–56

MADEUF, Bernadette. A new approach to international economics, 253–83

MARKIEWICZ, Wladyslaw. Social science policy in Eastern Europe, 407–20

MARTINOTTI, Guido. Data processing, government and the public: reflections on the Italian case, 146–63

M'BOW, Amadou-Mahtar. The practice of consensus in international organizations, 893–903

MERLE, Marcel. Political parties and foreign policy in pluralist regimes, 73–87

MICHALET, Charles-Albert. A new approach to international economics, 253–83

MUMTAZ, Kamil Khan. Traditional forms of rural habitat in Pakistan, 477–97

NEWCOMBE, Alan. Some contributions of the behavioural sciences to the study of violence, 750–75

PEREIRA REIS, Elisa Maria. Spatial dislocation and social identity in Brazil, 98–115
PETRELLA, Riccardo. Towards a European community in the social sciences, 678–82
POQUET, Guy. The limits to global modelling, 284–300
RAJABOV, S. A. Geographical factors and certain problems of federalism in the U.S.S.R., 88–97
ROKKAN, Stein. National primary socio-economic data structures. III: Norway, 621–52
RYKLIN, M. Rousseau, Rousseauism and the fundamental concepts of structural anthropology, 605–17
SCHWARTZMAN, Simon. Spatial dislocation and social identity in Brazil, 98–115
SHAW, L. Improving information on current development research: a Western European perspective, 929–43
SHUPILOV, V. Methodological problems of the study of violence from the standpoint of criminology, 858–66
SPITZ, Pierre. Silent violence: famine and inequality, 867–92
STOJANOVIC, Radoslav. Interdependence in international relations, 238–52
THEE, Marek. The dynamics of the arms race, military R&D and disarmament, 904–25
THOMPSON, Eric J. Social Trends: the development of an annual report for the United Kingdom, 653–9
THOMSON, Brian. The periphery and the environment: three case-studies in Argentina and Brazil (1870–1970), 498–535
TINBERGEN, Jan. Alternative forms of international co-operation: comparing their efficiency, 223–37
TRIFFIN, Robert. Reshaping the international monetary order, 301–14
VAUZELLES-BARBIER, Dorothée. Public participation in the rehabilitation of urban centres, 536–59
VAYRYNEN, Raimo. International patenting as a means of technological dominance, 315–37
VINOGRADOV, V. A. Social science information services in the U.S.S.R., 395–403
YOSHIHARA, Kunio. Determinants of Japanese investment in South-East Asia, 363–76.

© Unesco 1978 Imprimerie des Presses Universitaires de France, Vendôme